MONEY, STOCKS AND BONDS.

* An Inactive Market Influenced by Anticipations of a Bad Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, June 29 .- Money on call was easy, with no loans, closing offered at 3 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4@54 per cent. Sterling exchange dull but steady at $4.8619 for sixty-day bills, and $4.884 for demand. The total sales of stocks to-day were 67,031 shares, including the following: Atchison, 10,640; Lake Shore, 3,375; Louisville & Nashville, 1,700; Missouri Pacific, 2,375; Northwestern, 1,710; Union Pacific, 2,900; St. Paul, 11,900; Reading,

The stock market to-day was fairly active, but the animation was almost entirely confined to the trusts, which again furnished more business than the regular list. They were also decidedly strong throughout, and especially Lead and Sugar, and to a certain extent checked the declining tendency in the general list, caused principally by the hammering of the traders. There was a general expectation of a bad bank statement, and this served to restrict buying and encouraged the bearish traders to bring considerable pressure upon the list, so that first prices were from 1s to 3s per cent. below lost evening's closing figures, and further declines of a like amount were scored in the early trading under the lead of St. Paul & Atchison. The unusual strength shown in Sugar and Lead trusts, however, acted as a wet blanket upon the "bears," and on very large transactions Lead rose from 32½ to 34, and Sugar from 1155s to 117½ in the first hour. The regular list responded with a rally of small fractions, which, however, was sufficient to bring most of the list up above first prices. Lead gave way again after 11 o'clock, but Sugar steadily rose, until at the close it had reached 1187s, a net gain of 31s per cent. The general list fell away again, but the net gain of 31s per cent. The general list fell away again, but the bank statement proving better than expected, and prices rallied again toward the close, which was fairly active and firm, at but slight changes from last evening's figures. There was little or no news from the West, and the market was uninfluenced by anything outside of the board room. The final changes are insignificant, and about equally divided between gains and losses. Lead shows a gain of 11s per cent. shows a gain of 1 's per cent.

Railroad bonds were dull, the total sales being only $380,000, and the number of issues traded in was unusually small. The market was weaker than at any time within the last few weeks, and most of the important changes in quotations are declines. Morris & Essex first consols lost 312 at

TRADING AT CHICAGO.

Iontreal....

The Ups and Downs of the Market, with the Range in Prices of Leading Articles. CHICAGO, June 29 .- Trading was quite active in wheat, and the feeling developed nervous and unsettled. At times indications pointed strongly to the market going higher, and again it showed signs of weakness. Fluctuations were not large. July advanced 5sc, receded 11sc, and closed 120 lower than yesterday. August advanced le and closed le lower. December was the strongest on the list early, and advanced 7sc. then became weak, declining 1 3sc, and closed 1sc lower than yesterday. The influences governing the market were of about the same tenor as those received the past few days, except that the advices from the Northwest represent the crop in a worse condition than heretofore. Speculative Hot winds were again reported, and some sections favored with slight rains. The short interest turned back to the winter wheat, which they claim is turning out well, with the exception, perhaps, of some localities. It is spring wheat against winter wheat, which causes the changing conditions of the market. News was received of damage to crops in southern Germany by recent heavy rains. Foreign market advices were more encouraging. Corn ruled moderately active, though at times the market was quite dull, fluctuations being within a narrow range, and trading chiefly of a local character. The feeling was rather easy early in the day, but as the session advanced a better tone was apparent. The market opened a shade under the closing prices of yesterday, was easy for a time, due mainly to the fine weather and to the receipts being over the estimates. At the decline a good demand existed for the near futures, shippers purchasing fair quantities and the market advanced 3sc, ruled steady and closed a shade better than yesterday. On oats a liberal business was transacted within an exceedingly narrow range. Mess pork was moderately active early, but dullness prevailed later. An unsettled feeling existed, and opening sales were at 5c decline. After a further recession of 2 c a better tone developed. Buyers took hold quite liberally, and prices advanced 12 c, but buside figures were not maintained at the close. In lard a dull, weak feeling existed. Prices declined .05 \(\pi \).07 c and the market closed easy at about inside figures. Short-rib sides were weaker and prices ranged lower, but a good deal of business the stream of the prices and prices ranged lower, but a good deal of business the stream of the prices and prices ranged lower, but a good deal of business the stream of the prices that within a prices ranged lower, but a good deal of business market and prices ranged lower, but a good deal of business the stream of the prices and prices an

INDIANAPOLIS MARKETS, A Quiet Day in Trade Circles, with No Fluctuations in Values of Importance.

1,850; shipments, 280.

Indianapolis, June 29. It being the last day of the week and the last day of the mouth for business, trade to-day was very quiet. Most of the merchants made a halfholiday of it and witnessed the game of base-ball between the Indianapolis and New York clubs. In prices there were no changes of importance. Dry goods of all descriptions, with the strong tone to the wool market, rule firm, and indications favor higher prices on fall and winter goods. Grocers report a free distribution of sugars in progress, and prices rule very strong, while coffees are easy at the break of Friday last. In other staple groceries there is nothing new to note. Provisions carry a firmer tone with an increase in sales in a jobbing way. The hide market still drags, so far as prices are concerned, yet there is more activity to the market than thirty days ago. In produce there is a good deal of activity. Hens and chickens are firm and in good demand. Receipts of eggs are more liberal, and prices are wavering somewhat. Receipts of butter are hardly as heavy as a week ago, and prices are somewhat firmer. Old potatoes are in light demand. New potatoes are plentiful and prices are off. Cabbage is plentiful, and much of the stock is poor and is selling low. In small fruits receipts are liberal and prices are weak. Toma-toes are more plentiful and the market is breaking. Some very good ones sold to-day at 40c for one-third bushel boxes. Watermelons are in good supply and selling slow. Lemons are in good demand, with prices firm. The supply of oranges is small and so is the demand. Good Messinas will bring but $4.50 per box. The men are having a fair trade at unchanged prices. The Indianapolis Market Report shows the receipts of wheat to-day to have been but 600 bushels. It quotes:

long. It is important that all kinds of trees should have plenty of time to mature the growth of new wood, and if the mulch is left on too long it will often keep up the growth of the trees so long that the wood will not mature be-fore cold, freezing water sets in, and in consequence the tree is injured. So that in a majority of cases it will be best to re-move the mulch from the trees as soon as the fall rains come, and this will usually give sufficient time for the trees to mature all the new growth of wood.

A variety of materials can be used for mulching. One of the best, when it can be had without too much inconvenience, is had without too much inconvenience, is bagasse from the sorghum mill. When this can be had there are few, if any, materials that excel it for this purpose. Old wheat straw is another good material. Wheat or rye straw is better than oat straw or old hay, although either can be used to good advantage. If old corn stalks are run through a cutting box they make a good mulch. Coal ashes are good. Whatever the material used, it should be applied in good season and in sufficient quantity to good season and in sufficient quantity to fully protect the soil from drying out.

Clean Grain.

It is not always possible to clean grain as well as it should be with the thresher. Many times it may be done, provided everything is all right—the grain dry, the wind in the right direction, the machine in good repair, and properly managed. But it is often the case that some of these conditions will not be fulfilled, and the consequence is that more or less of the grain will not be cleaned as it should be before sending to market. Good, clean, sound, plump grain always sells at the highest prices, and in a majority of cases the difference in the price that it is possible to secure will pay well for the work of cleaning. N. J. S., in Prairie Farmer.

As a rule, in marketing almost any kind of product, it will be found a good plan to take pains to have it in such condition that it will not only sell readily, but at the best possible price. Of course, it will cost less to have it cleaned in threshing, yet as this is not always possible, the next best plan is to be prepared to clean whenever necessary, rather than to send any grain to market not properly cleaned.

It is true the miller or warehouseman can clean, but it will usually cost him fully as much as the farmer, and in buying he intends, if possible, to pay a price that will enable him to realize a fair profit for the work; and in a majority of cases this profit the farmer can make in the better price he can secure for his products. It is when the price of products is low that all reasonable care should be taken to receive the best price, and with small grain especially. One important item in doing this is to send to market clean. If the thresher cleans it properly, it will be best; but if not, the fanning-mill should be used, and care taken to remove all the trash and other seeds. Much that is taken out can be used for feed. At least it is better to leave upon the farm than to send to market with the grain, lowering the price of all in ures of this character, which will appear order to dispose of a small quantity of

Sense of Smell in the Horse.

Horse and Stable The horse will leave musty hay untouched in his bin, no matter however hungry. He will not drink of water objectionable to his questioning sniffs or from bucket which some other odor makes offensive, however thirsty. His intelligent nostril will widen, quiver and query over the daintiest bit offered by the fairest of the daintiest bit offered by the fairest of hands. A mare is never satisfied by either sight or whinny that her colt is really her own until she has certified the fact by means of her nose. Blind horses, as a rule, will gallop wildly about a pasture without striking the surrounding feace. The sense of smell informs them of its proximity. Others will, when loosened from the stable, go directly to the gate or here overling to go directly to the gate or bars opening to their accustomed feeding grounds; and when desiring to return, after hours of careless wandering, will distinguish the one outlet and patiently await its opening.
The odor of that particular part of the fence is their guide to it. The horse in browsing, or while gathering herbage with its lip, is guided in its choice of proper food entirely by its nostrils. Blind horses do not make mistakes in their diet. In the temple of Olympus a bronze horse was exhibited, at the sight of which six real horses experienced the most violent emotions. Alian judiciously observes that the most perfect art could not imitate nature sufficiently well to produce so perfect an illusion. Like Pliny and Pausanias, he consequently affirms that "in casting the consequently affirms that "in casting the statue a magician had thrown hippomanes apon it," which, by the odor of the plant, deceived the horses, and therein we have the secret of the miracle. The scent alone of a buffalo robe will cause many horses to evince lively terror, and the floating scent of a railroad train will frighten some long after the locomotive is out of sight and

Training Colts.

The most renumerative branch of the horse-dealer's business is that comprised within the buying and training of young, green horses of good breeding and high promise. He buys this sort of the farmer at, say, $125, or $140, and after two to three months' feeding, grooming and training, finds a ready buyer at two or three times the price named. This is an instance of the price named. This is an instance of the farmer growing the material out of which an outside professional makes a round sum, while it is safe to say that the farmer, after having taken all the risks during a period of four or five years, sells property of high value and great promise for barely enough to pay for hay, grain and pasturage consumed. Suppose the buyer is shown that a young horse of high qualities of physique has had such of high qualities of physique has had such fitting and education as to make him fit to be at once offered in a city market, and that, too, under guarantee, it requires no argument to show that the breeder and trainer is in a most excellent position to dictate terms of sale. No farmer should permit a raw colt to leave his premises. This is as unwise as to send a half-fatted steer to market, knowing that this would necessitate the feeding and fitting in other hands, and that the first buyer would discount accordingly.

An Exception to the Rule.

Philadelphia Press. Colonel Money, of Tennessee, who has been appointed minister to Paraguay, refuses to discuss the matter. Here is one case, at least, where Money doesn't talk.

During the summer one of the principal objects of applying a mulch is to aid the soil in retaining moisture. While the plants are growing they require consilerable moisture. During the supplied by showers, but in summer the showers will often be so far between that the plants will suffer. In order to avoid at least partially the effect of this a good mulch is applied. If the work is done properly and in good season, a considerable benefit can be derived. One important item is to have the soil in good tilth: hoe or rake until it is in the proper condition, and then apply the mulch. Stirring the surface thoroughly is in itself a good help in retaining moisture. After the mulch is applied it should not be disturbed until the plants have matured their crops or the fall rains have set in.

Nearly all vines, such as melons, citrons, squash, pumpkin, tomato and cucumber, will be benefited by a good mulch applied after giving thorough cultivation, when the vines have secured a good growth.

Newly-set trees and plants of all kinds should be mulched well before hot, dry weather sets in, and it is often possible by this means to maintain a good, healthy growth when otherwise the trees would be considerably injured. This applies equally well to fruit as to ornamental trees. It will be best, however, with the majority of trees not te allow the mulch to remain on too long.
